This Standard Work on the Chinese Language, constructed on the basis of Kanghi's Imperial Dictionary, contains all Chinese characters in practical use, and while alphabetically arranged according to the sounds of the oldest dialect of China, the Cantonese, it gives also the Mandarin pronunciation of all characters explained in the boos, so that its usefulness is by no means confined to the Cantonese Dialect, but the work is a practically complete Thesaurus of the whole Written Language of China, ancient and modern, as used all over the Empire, whilst its introductory chapters serve the purposes of a philological guide to the student. A Supplement, arranged for being bound and used by itself, and containing a List of the Radicals, an Index, and a List of Surnames, will be published and sold

As the steamer has, however, only a few miles of cable on board, she will, after having laid the shore end, go to Singapore to load up with the rest of the cable for this line, and will then proceed with the work. This result is much to be deplored, as her evidence pointed strongly towards the man's guilt. The somewhat injudicious verdict of the jury at the inquest held on the deceased no doubt had much to do with the disappearance of the chief witness in the

Hene is a story for the Society for Payehical Research. It was told a few days ago by a late manager of a Rhondda colliery, who is said to be a thoroughly trustworthy man, to a Welsh journalist. Sitting one Sunday morning with three comrades in the lodge auddenly seized by an irresistible impulse to ascend at once, which impulse he told to the wall above put out the lamp of one of the men, obliging him to ascend. When he returned, the impulse, stronger than before, again prompted the manager to urge their ascent, and again while talking a drop of water falling into the lamp again put the signal to be lifted up, and no sooner had they reached the open air than a terrible explosion took place, shattering the shaft, and filling it with debris, which could only be removed after some months of hard labour. This remarkable incident stands by no means alone, forebodings and dreams times of coming danger. Clearly this Rhondda manager should be elected a life

Mr Francis then addressed the Councilat considerable length on the Bill. He opposed it on the ground, among others, that if it was passed it would injuriously effect Dr. Fisher's private interests, while it was not a Bill that the community generally demanded, nor was it for the public good. Dr Fisher was an American citizen. He held a certificate from a medical college in San Francisco, entitling him to practise medicine and surgery, he having passed a proper examination, and he also held the honorary degree of doctor of modicine from the medical college at Fort Wayne, the capital of Indiana, which degree, according to the regulations, was granted only to distinguished physicians over 40 years of age. He was engaged for a couple of years on one of the large steamers trading between here and Hongkong, and was induced some three or four years ago to sattle in practice here. He was aware that the Medical Board which it was proposed under this Ordinance to constitute here could examine Dr Fisher's qualifications, and, if they pleased, could place him on an equal footing with other medical practitioners in the Colony in all respects, but as this Board would be composed of medical practitioners in the Colony who were hostile to Dr Fisher and refused to hold consultations with him, his client naturally objected to being placed at the mercy of under the control of the Engineer of the this Board. The Attorney General said it was not the intention of the Government to introduce and Bill to amend the gambling ordinances just yet, but the Covernment would be at any time very glad to receive suggestions on this, or any other matter, from Mr. Wong Shing, and would take action upon them if it was thought desirable to do so. The Government Marine Surveyor was not present, he not went into committee on it and finally passed having been notified of the Dock Company's intention to raise steam. Consequently the safety valves were not adjusted on this occasion, as they should have been before the vessel proceeded under steam. After this trial, the Dock Company considered

THIS Review, which was intended to meet | Patterns, per two ounces. the wants of many students of Chinese -caused by the discontinuance of " Notes and Onories on China and Japan," has reached its Twelfth Volume. "This number contains several articles of interest and value. "-North-China Herabl. . "The Ohina Review for Soptember-October fully maintains the high standard of excellence which characterises that publi ention, and altogether forms a very interesting and readable number. Meteorologists will find an interesting and valuable contribution by Dr. Fritsche, on "the Amount of Precipitation (Rain and Snow) of Poking," showing the results of observations made at the Imperial Rac. sian Observatory at Peking, from 1811 to 1880. " Notes on the Dutch Occupation of Formosa," by Mr. Geo. Phillips, rontains some interesting information, although much of it is second-hand. The Notices of New Books include a most generous and appreciative review of "The Divine Classic of Nan-Hua," and the Notes and Queries are as usual very interesting." - North-China Daily News. "A substantial and reliable farior which all students of China and the Chinese would do well to patronise."—Chrysanthonnum. "The November-December number of the China Reciew contains less variety than usual, but the few articles are very interesting. The opening paper by Mr Herbert A. Giles on " The New Testament in Chinose" treats of a question that must necessarily be of great importance in the eyes missionaries. . . Mr E. H. Parker's "Short Journeys in Szechnen are continued, and a goodly instalment of these travels in the interior of China is given. Mr F. H. Balfour contributes a paper of some length entitled "The Binperor Cheng, founder of the Chinese Empire," which will be read with genuine interest by students of Chinese history. neighbouring countries, some what similar to that which has been filled in India by the Calcutta Review. The great degree of attention that has been bestowed of late years upon the investigation of Chinese literature, antiquities, and social developments, to say nothing of linguistic studies, has led to the accumulation of important stores of information, rendering some such channel of publicity as is now provided extremely desirable; and contributions of much interest may fairly be looked or from the members of the foreign consular services, the Chinese Customs' corps, and the missionary body. among whom a high degree of Chinese scholarship is now ussiduously cultivated. and who are severally represented in the first number of the Review by papers highly creditable to their respective authors . . Some translations from Chinese novels and plays are marked by both accuracy and froshness of style; and an account of the career of the Chinese poet-statesman of the eleventh century, Su Tung-p'o, by Mr. E. C. Bowra, is not only historically valuable, but is also distinguished by its literary grace. Beside notices of new books relating to China and the East, which will be a useful feature of the Review, if carried out with punctuality and detail; we are glad to notice that "Notes" and "Queries" are destined to find a place in its pages also. It is to be hoped that this opening for contributions on Chinese subjects may evoke a similar degree of literary zeal, to that which was displayed during the lifetime of its predeconsor in the field, and that the China Review may receive the support necessary to insure
